

The Apollo 11 mission launched on July 16, 1969, carrying astronauts Neil Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin, and Michael Collins.

Neil Armstrong became the first human to walk on the Moon on July 20, 1969, famously saying "That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind."

The lunar module Eagle landed in the Sea of Tranquility, while Collins orbited above in the command module Columbia.

The crew splashed down safely in the Pacific Ocean on July 24, 1969, completing an 8-day mission that changed history forever.
